Please replace the paragraph beginning at page 2, lines 22-30, with the following rewritten paragraph:

Further, a hyperlink occasionally is connected to a document generated such as by an HTML. An object is occasionally provided including a document generated such as by an HTM to be referred to as an external resource. However, the electronic information released such as on the Internet is generally constructed by supposing that the electronic information is inspected in an online manner. Therefore, if the electronic information is locally preserved (i.e., stored in a storing device of a PC), an ~~objet~~ object either embedded or referred to occasionally is not available from the electronic information because the hyperlink is disconnected. As a result, it can not be noted and accordingly not certified after the end of the release on the network (i.e., Internet) what electronic information was released on the network.
